PROGRAMA # 9700 12:00 PM (hora del Pacífico)

Gran arreglo sobre el clima y los impuestos.

Los senadores Schumer y Manchin llegaron a un acuerdo de gastos que aumentará los impuestos a los ricos para así financiar inversiones en clima y atención médica. La "Ley de Reducción de la Inflación", anunciada como la mayor inversión a favor del clima en la historia de los Estados Unidos, se planea presentar a votación esta semana. ¿Qué hay en el proyecto? ¿Qué falta en el plan de salud? ¿Llegará a pasar?

Invitados: José López Zamorano, reportero de noticias, Washington, DC; Raúl Hinojosa, Profesor, Director of North American Integration and Development Center, UCLA, Los Angeles, CA.

Educando a los votantes latinos en Georgia. Jóvenes activistas están tocando a la puerta de los hogares de votantes latinos en Georgia. A cuatro meses de las elecciones, promotores del voto quieren aclarar las nuevas leyes electorales que se aprobaron en Georgia para evitar problemas cuando emitan su voto en noviembre. Las nuevas leyes redujeron los buzones de votación y restringieron el voto en ausencia, entre otras restricciones.

Invitada: Adelina Nicholls, Directora Ejecutiva, Alianza Latina de Georgia por los Derechos Humanos, Atlanta, GA.
